CERTKILLERS

IBM

00M-660

IBM Worklight Mobile Foundation Sales Mastery Test v1

QUESTION: 20
What is a hybrid mobile application?

A. An eco-friendly application that runs on electrical power and is overpriced for its value.
B. An application that is developed by two separate teams integrating server-side and client- side assets respectively.
C. An application that is developed using both native and web-based coding languages.
D. A mobile web application developed using JavaScript.

Answer: C

QUESTION: 21
Worklight's platform allows for the usage of:

A. Native code and HTML5
B. Native code only
C. A Windows based machine instead of a Mac for compiling in XCode
D. Native code, HTML and open source libraries based on JavaScript

Answer: A

QUESTION: 22
What added benefit is there to the IBM Worklight Mobile Platform compared to in-house mobile development?

A. IBM Worklight provides a middleware services layer.
B. IBM Worklight provides Optimization capabilities.
C. IBM Worklight provides multiple features to address enterprise security requirements.
D. All of the above

Answer: C

QUESTION: 23

What of the following is the primary differentiator between the Worklight Mobile Platform and Kony's Mobile Platform?

A. The ability to build adaptors that connect to a wide variety of back-end applications.
B. The ability to build Hybrid applications using HTML5, JavaScript and CSS# that interact directly with the device.
C. The ability to support both B2C and B2E applications from a single solution.
D. The ability to gather analytics on application usage and transactions that can then be formatted and uploaded to any of the industry leading web analytics platforms.

Answer: C